Corrigendum

At the request of the representative of Cuba the following statement should be incorporated in the second full paragraph appearing on page 15:

The measures taken by the United States Government because of its balance-of-payments situation constitute a further step in the policy of making the world bear the adverse consequences of its irresponsible and interventionist strategy which is today most clearly evidenced in the Viet-Nam aggression. It is clear to us that some of the deepest roots of the United States' domestic crisis are to be found in the United States Government's pretensions of acting like an international policeman.

Far from accepting new trade restrictions as the United States desires, what the developing peoples are asking for is that this bellicose policy should be abandoned. Instead of new restrictions, concrete action is necessary to improve conditions of access to markets and prices of export products.
