Matter referred to the TSB by the Textiles Committee at its meeting held on 4-5 September 1984

4. At its meeting held on 4-5 September 1984, the Textiles Committee noted a common view that the matter of CVD actions should, as requested by exporting developing countries, be examined by the TSB in the light of Article 9 of the MFA and paragraph 23 of the 1981 Protocol, and the result of this examination should be considered by the Textiles Committee on 17 October.

5. The TSB examined this matter, but did not yet reach any conclusion on it.

and textile products. It is to be recalled that Norway became a participant in the MFA from 1 July 1984.

\textsuperscript{2}COM.TEX/SB/962, 975, 978 and 982
8. After having heard presentations by the delegations of Peru and the United States, the TSB noted:

(a) the statements by both delegations that Peru declined to enter into consultations within the sixty-day period, so notifying the United States on 8 March 1984;

(b) the statement by Peru that it did not enter into consultations because it had found that the data supplied by the United States were inadequate and therefore not in conformity with the MFA, and did not demonstrate market disruption.

9. The TSB found that:

(a) the United States in requesting consultations had not fully complied with the requirements of Article 3:3 as regards the provision of the reasons and justification for the request, including the latest data concerning elements of market disruption;

(b) additional data were made available to Peru only at the time the restraint was introduced by the United States in April 1984.

10. The TSB was of the opinion that the information provided by the United States to Peru at the time of the request for consultations, and up to the introduction of the restraint, was insufficient to sustain the claim of market disruption, and recommended that:

(a) the United States should not insist that 31 January 1984 be maintained as the effective date of the request for consultations and that it consider 31 March 1984 as the effective date. This would take account of the views of both countries with respect to the way the consultation request had been made and the consultation process had been followed;

(b) the parties hold consultations on the basis of the data now available, taking into account all relevant provisions of the MFA, including paragraph III of Annex A.
