The French authorities have informed the GATT secretariat that further measures to liberalize imports have been undertaken. Some twenty-six tariff items and sub-items have been added to the list, published in the French Journal Officiel of 13 January 1960, of products which in effect can be freely imported without limitation from all countries.

The list of these additional twenty-six items has been published in the Journal Officiel of 23 February 1960. They include natural honey; pig's bristles for brushes; tea; sweetened forage and other prepared feedingstuffs for animals; natural graphite in crystal form; clay (kaolin, bentonite, etc.); pumice stone, emery and natural abrasives; certain metallic ores and concentrates; coke and semi-coke of coal, of lignite and of peat; plaiting materials including Chinese mats and matting; ramie, raw or processed, but not spun; articles of asphalt; articles of plaster; articles of cement, concrete or artificial stone; fabricated asbestos; articles of stone or of other mineral substances; building bricks; piping, conduits and guttering; articles of piezo-electric quartz, for industrial use.
