The French authorities have announced a new list of goods which are no longer subject to quotas when imported from countries which are members of the OEEC and from the United States and Canada.

The new list of liberalized products, effective 1 July 1960 includes organic chemicals, certain types of clothing, linoleum, certain scarves and hats, specified types of imitation jewelry, a variety of machine tools, equipment materials, specified motors and pumps, geodetic instruments, electric construction tools and certain electric household appliances such as vacuum cleaners.

The new list is reproduced in the French Journal Officiel of 26 June 1960.
