The French Government has informed the GATT secretariat of an important step which it has recently taken in removing quantitative restrictions on imports. The new liberalization measures taken cover a considerable number of industrial products imported from the United States, Canada and the OEEC countries.

With a few exceptions, the measures came into effect on 1 April. As a result only a limited number of products in the industrial sector now remain on the French list of restricted imports from the OEEC countries, Canada and the United States.
