WORKING PARTY 5

1. The nationality of articles not resulting in any part from materials or labour of more than one country shall be that of the country where the articles were grown, produced or manufactured;

2. The nationality of articles resulting from materials and labour of two or more countries shall be that of the country in which such articles have last undergone a substantial transformation;

3. Among other situations, a substantial transformation shall be considered to have occurred when the processing results in giving a new individuality to the product.

Explanatory Note

Each contracting party, on the basis of criteria fixed in the definition, may establish a list of processes which are accepted as giving to a product a new individuality, or as otherwise substantially transforming it.