Effects of Restrictions on Export Trade
(Reply to Question 5 of GATT/CP/39)

ADDENDUM

Reply by India

"Being a soft currency country, this country is normally not discriminated against by the import policy of other countries. The only exception is Pakistan's treatment of our piecegoods. The effects of Pakistan's discriminatory treatment were to create a large adverse balance for India in the 1948-49 trade with Pakistan, until this country took steps to divert its exports to other countries."
