2. Basic Instruments and Selected Documents. Seventh Supplement (GATT/1959-1)

A study of the part played by restrictive business practices in economic life; the attitude of domestic legislation with respect to such practices; and attempts made since 1945 to achieve international control of restrictive business practices affecting international trade. This report was written by Professor J. L'Haillier of the University of Geneva. To be published in March 1959. Price not yet fixed. English and French editions.

In order to bridge the gap since the last report was published (International Trade 1956) this volume will, in Part I, analyse the main changes in the structure and development of international trade over a two-year period. As in earlier volumes in this series, the report will include in Parts II and III a review of developments in the field of commercial policy in 1958 (customs tariffs, quantitative restrictions, export promotion schemes, trade agreements), and a summary of the work of the Contracting Parties to GATT during the past year. To be published in June/July 1959. Price not yet fixed. English and French editions.
