3. The CONTRACTING PARTIES will appoint a group of experts on restrictive business practices which will meet each year. The secretariat will provide the group with the information, brought forward under point 2. The group will discuss the general aspects of that information in order to get an insight in the nature and extent of the influence, which is exerted in restrictive business practices, on the expansion of world trade and on the economic development in individual countries. On these matters, the group will report annually to the CONTRACTING PARTIES.

4. After five years, the group of experts will in the light of the experience gathered, advise contracting parties on the course of action to be followed further on.
