The United States would request agreement among exporters not to subsidize exports or to engage in other practices which have the same effect as a subsidy.

Importing countries should agree to countervail against all subsidized or abnormally priced exports. When the amount of export subsidies or other payments is unclear the countervailing levy should be applied on the basis of export prices of the most efficient producer or producers.