PART G

Part G.1 Information on Domestic Policies and Trade Measures

The favourable climatic conditions in the People's Republic of Bulgaria, determined by its geographical situation, create good preconditions for a successful breeding and fattening of slaughtering animals in mountainous, semi-mountainous and plain areas in using pasture-grounds, cattlesheds (with combined fodder) and both. The above-mentioned, as well as the long-term politic of the Government, aiming at the annual increase of the meat production by means of providing for stable prices, for the production offered by the producers, as well as by means of supplying the lacking fodder by import, set the pattern for a better satisfying consumers' demand within the country and for setting aside considerable quantities for export, regarding the small size of the country.

Traditionally, the largest meat consumption in the country is that of pork, followed by that of beef and other meats of young animals (calves, lambs, etc). Exports of the different kinds of meat have varied in the last years as follows:

- meats of young animals (calves, lambs, etc) - 15-17,000 tons
- beef - 10-15,000 tons
- pork - 11-13,000 tons

According to the necessities of the home market certain quantities of meat are being imported yearly. The main suppliers are: Mongolia - meat of young animals (calves, lambs, etc) and beef, France and the Federal Republic of Germany - of veal and beef.

The imported meat is being taxed with 8 to 20 per cent. Other taxes or restrictions of trade character are not being applied on the import in the People's Republic of Bulgaria.

The meat export is not an object of customs or other taxes neither is it State-aided.

The exported and the imported meat is subject to a strict veterinary supervision exercised by a special scientific-productors' unit at the Ministry of Agriculture in the packing-houses and at the frontier posts according to the existing norms in the exporting country as well as in the People's Republic of Bulgaria.
