Consideration of New Article 100

The Working Party which was formed to redraft the proposed text submitted by the delegation of Chile, reported that since no compromise wording acceptable to all concerned could be found, the delegation of Chile, in a gesture of co-operation, withdrew its amendment.

Consideration of Mexican Amendment to Paragraph 3 of Article 99

This amendment was withdrawn since certain delegations had explained that their governments would encounter constitutional difficulties in attempting to enforce the provisions of Article 99 if it were amended as proposed. The delegate of Mexico stated that since Mexico would encounter constitutional difficulties in accepting the text of the Charter because it was not in the Spanish language, he reserved the right to raise the very same arguments which had been expounded in the Sub-Committee against his amendment, particularly in regard to the proposed amendments to Article 92.