The work of the Drafting Committee has now progressed sufficiently to enable the Secretariat to initiate the preparation of the Report for consideration by the Second Session. It has been found that certain points are not entirely clear and it may be useful for the Secretariat to advance herewith its interpretation of the views expressed by the Drafting Committee in this respect.

(a) In the mimeographed document containing the text of the Report that will be circulated to the Drafting Committee for its final approval, countries will be mentioned throughout. In the printed Report, the names of countries will not appear.

(b) Square brackets will be used to enclose wording the adoption of which is left for future consideration for reasons other than a divergence of views on substance.

(c) Alternative texts will be included in the text of the Draft Charter whenever the Drafting Committee has so decided; otherwise, they will be incorporated in the commentary.

(d) Reservations made at the First Session and maintained at the Drafting Committee will be mentioned accordingly in the commentary.

(e) The Drafting Committee should decide whether the text of each Article will be accompanied by the commentary thereon, or whether the entire text of the Charter will be given first, followed by the commentary.

(f) The commentary will include reservations, observations, explanatory notes.
notes and comments; it will explain the changes and suggestions made by the Drafting Committee, so that the Second Session may readily comprehend the purpose behind such alterations.
